11.00am – 11.45am

The HPA axis and the impact it has on the skin

The hypothalamic-pituitary-adrenal axis, or HPA axis describes the interaction between the hypothalamus, pituitary gland, and adrenal glands. It is our central stress response system. Research has confirmed skin as both an immediate stress perceiver and as a target of stress responses. We recognise the skin as being largest organ of the body and it plays a very important role with both the barrier and immune functions, developing a fully functional peripheral HPA system.

In this session you will;

- Understand what the HPA axis is and the pathways
- Understand the impact stress has on the immune system.
- Understand the impact stress has on skin cells and the barrier function.
- Identify some skin disorders caused by the exacerbation.

Dr Marçal will discuss inflammation in the skin, how this can be addressed topically and natural extracts that can be used to help manage inflammatory skin concerns. She will summarize some known inflammatory skin conditions seen in the clinic and how they may present.

Dr Marçal will also discuss the importance of recognizing modalities in the clinic that have the potential to induce uncontrolled inflammation.

This session will cover:

- Identifying factors contributing to inflammation in the skin
- A summary of modalities in the clinic that may induce inflammation and how we can help keep induced inflammation in check
- Learning natural actives that help calm and reduce inflammation through the skin

JACINE GREENWOOD
Roccoco Botanicals

2.15pm – 3.00pm

Herbal management and clearance of acne

When treating acne often herbs are dismissed as inferior to chemical peels and actives such as retinoids, however many herbs have the ability biologically to act in a stronger capacity than many of their synthetic counterparts.

Learn what works and what percentages clinically they need to be in a formula. Discover how to decipher cosmetic labels, to ensure you have the correct clinical percentage of efficacy in your products.

By attending this session:

- Botanical alternatives that exist to retinoids for increasing cellular turnover
- How to calm inflamed acne quickly with botanicals
- What ingredients are direct replacements for benzoyl peroxide use
- How to decipher your ingredient deck to ensure the actives are in the right percentage.
